Ben Valentin KC is best known for the high quality and robustness of his advocacy, his clear and client-focused commercial advice and his calm, collaborative and responsive approach.

He is a commercial disputes specialist, with acknowledged expertise in disputes involving banking and finance, civil fraud, corporate transactions and company law, and insolvency and restructuring. He has extensive experience as a trial and appellate advocate, regularly appearing before the higher English courts, at all stages of proceedings. His English practice is diverse in subject matter and often international in nature.

He is also an acknowledged specialist advocate in international arbitration, and acts as an expert on English law in civil litigation overseas.

Beyond his London practice, Ben has significant experience as an advocate in complex offshore litigation (notably in the British Virgin Islands and the Cayman Islands).

Expertise

Banking & Finance

Early in his career, Ben was part of the team, instructed by Freshfields, that successfully acted for the Bank of England in defending the Three Rivers litigation after the collapse of BCCI. During his eight-year involvement, until the discontinuance of the case in 2005, the litigation generated well-known decisions, notably on privilege and indemnity costs. Since then, he has acted in numerous banking cases and is consistently ranked amongst the leading advocates in this field. He is currently acting for the Republic of Argentina in substantial Commercial Court proceedings arising from its 2005 debt restructuring.

International Arbitration

Throughout his career, Ben has acted in international commercial arbitrations, often as a member of an integrated legal team, and more recently as lead advocate. In 1995-96, he was a foreign intern in the international arbitration group at Skadden, Arps in New York. He regularly teaches arbitration advocacy as part of the external faculty to a leading US law firm. His arbitration work also includes a number of reported court decisions, including most notably as lead advocate for many years for Telia (Sonera) in its long-running BVI enforcement proceedings relating to Turkcell.
