International Arbitration

Richard has extensive current and past experience of LCIA, ICSID and ad hoc arbitrations of maximum complexity. They span banking, the commercial and military air industry and oil and gas and other contractual issues.

His practice is cross jurisdictional and he is currently or has recently been involved with matters that involve the UK, US, Europe, Saudi Arabia, UAE, Latvia, Kazakhstan, West Africa, Thailand, India and offshore jurisdictions.

Three of Richard's great strengths that informs his popularity in arbitrations are:

1. Leading multinational and multidimensional legal and expert teams. For example in one recently concluded ICSID arbitration Richard was leading a team of ten from the UK, France, Switzerland, Russia and Hungary. In an arbitration to be heard in October, he is leading a team of twelve with similar spread.
2. His skill as a formidable cross examiner. Recently he was brought into a six year arbitration just to cross examine the Governor of a major European Central Bank whose evidence was likely to be dispositive of the claims. The witness was so damaged by cross examination that the other side made no mention of his evidence in their closings.

3. His ability to tailor his presentation of arguments and evidence to suit the professional and national origins of diverse tribunals.

Richard is currently instructed in three major arbitrations.
